LAGOS, Nigeria, Feb. 16 (AP) .-Twenty-nine Catholic missionaries Fatah commandos claimed earlier today they had inflicted heavy losses on the Israelis in a battle last night on the occupied Golan Heights in Syria.

Several fires were started, vehicles and arms were destroyed and a mine field was blown up, the command added.

Twenty-nine Catholic missionaries who worked in Blaira were sentenced to fines or imprisonment in Port Harcourt. But after paying the fines, they were mysteriously locked up, informed sources said today.

The reinforced police squads, including 30 armed constables, combed neighborhoods in this northern industriol community hoping they could keep the unidentified gun-man confined.

A man believed to be the suspect was last seen running down a lane carrying a gun.

Police said they think the fugi-tive has run out of ammunition. The Sunday shootings brought a renewed demand in the House of Commons today for returning the death penalty to Britain.

Abolition Criticized

Glasgow Member of Parliament Edward Taylor atrongly criticaled abolition of the death penalty, permanently ended eight weeks ago, and urged Home Secretary James Callaghan to speak out on the subject. He said abolition has ied to increased attacks on police Inspector Reg Gale, chairman of the Police Federation, said: "I wonder if the abolitionists are sleeping easily in their beds after liese murders."

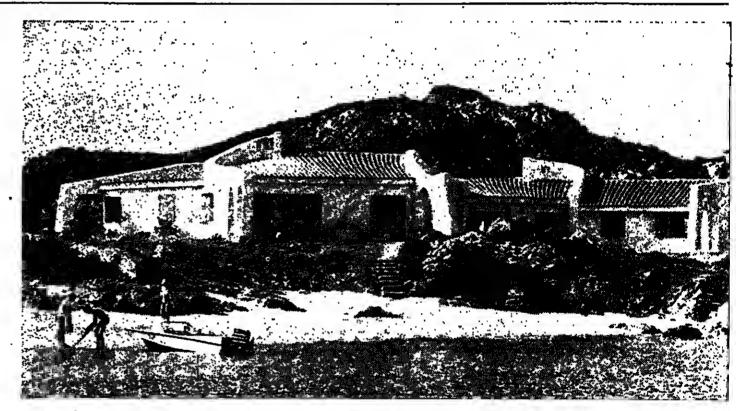

The slain inspector was the 11th policeman killed since Parliament voted in 1964 to abolish hanging for a five-year trial period.

The gunman's first victim was Ian Riley, a 32-year-old night watchman at a wool mili, killed by a shotgun early yesterday during an apparent robberg attempt. He was found dead near an un-

A villa on the Costa Smeralda costs as little as $25,000

The colour, the scents, the warmth and lostness of this magic world are free

The Costa Smeralda is a privately-owned strip of the spectacular north-east coast of Sardinia. Bit by hit, this land is being sold to people who want a Mediterranean retreat—and the right to privacy.

Not will be'-'is' Ten years ago the Costa Smeralda was virgin rock and sand. Today, after the building of a complete infrastructure network, and the investment of $80,000,000, it is an established community. The roads are already built. The water mains and electricity cables are laid. The telephones work. There is a medical station. a good laundry, and you can get domestic help. Six superb hotels, two of them in the luxury international class, are in operatioo. Food can be delivered fresh daily to your door or caught off Costa Smeralda's 80 beaches and served up steaming for lunch.

What would you like to do?

If you do not come to the Costa Smeralda for quietness alone, there are many ways to keep busy. Tennis, riding, fishing, and every kind of water sport. A superh golf course, designed by Robert Trent Jooes, will be completed by the end of the year.

Porto Cervo, the village 'capital', is breathtakingly beautiful, built around a harbour-froot piazza. Its shops sell all you will ever need for a holiday or for the year round. A tiny supermarket carries everything from washing powder to magnums of champagne. Three boutiques have racks of Carnaby Street and more traditional gear. You can buy jewellery, fresh fruit, vegetables, pharmaceuticals and outboard motors. You can rent a car or boat; pick up copies of today's European newspapers. How do you want to live?

You can buy an apartment or a villa on the Costa Smeralda. The Real Estate Agency can recommend architects and builders, and provide complete supervision. Or you may select your own architect to work within the guidelines laid down by the Architectural Committee. When you huy any property, you automatically become a voting member of the consortium of property owners. Speed-of-building note: You could move into your private villa between six and nine months after oegotiating site and plans. So far, and yet so near

The Costa Smeralda is remote but accessible. Alisarda, the Sardioian airline, flies daily to Olbia (and only 30 minutes away by road) from Rnme, Milan, Genoa and Nice. Olbia's 4,000 ft. all-weather paved airstrip can handle any private plane up to Gulfstream II size and performance. Car ferries sail regularly from Genoa, Civitavecchia and Toulon.

Porto Cervo barbour is the best-equipped in the Mediterranean. A sheltered, deepwater port, it can take yachts drawing up to 21 feet. At quayside it offers plug-in electrieity, fresh water and telephone.

Old Party; New Solutions

Disorder in the Courtroom

The French Radical Socialist party used to provide American students with a useful illustration of the placement of French adjectives; it was, they were told, not a radical Socialist party, but a radical party with some Socialism attached. And before those students were very much older the label had become a mere misnomer for the establishment party of the Third Republic.

This development is by no means unusual (the Republican party in the United States, or at least a dominant part of it, was once known as radical, while its Democratic opposition were the conservatives). What is unusual about the Radical Socialists is that they seek a rebirth of Radicalism, although not of a Socialist kind.

Across the French party system cuts the trauma of World War II, Vichy and the Liberation. Like the American civil war, which killed off the old Whigs and kept the Democrats out of national office for noarly a quarter-century, this staggering succeesion of events eclipsed the old-lino Socialists, and Radical Socialists, and gave power to new men, prominence to new lasues. And then the towering figure of Charles de Gaullo, in the constitutional crisis that erupted over the Algerian war, brought a polarization unusual in French politics and one which did not end with De Gaulle's retirement

The polarization is not complete: while the Gaullists have become the establishment, there is no single opposition group, even though the Communists represent the largest cohesive party on the other side. Several attempts have been made to assemble a non-Communist Left, but they have foundered on the lack of appealing programs or personalities. Now the Radical Socialists, under the intellectual inspiration of Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber, are making their sprint in the race, and it will be interesting to see if they can collect a following eufficient to challenge the Gaullists, while holding off the Communists.

Their program is arresting, in that it is neither Markist nor Keynesian, nor classically in the mode of Adam Smith. It combines the rejection of all government subsidies to business with heavy inheritance taxes, a program of infant education with political decentralization nationally and federalism internationally. Basically it hopes to appeal to the pervading French restlessness with Gaullism on the one hand and orthodox Marxism ("prophets of yesterday") on the

The attempt is intriguing, since virtually every government in the world is plagued by a similar restlessness, a similar search for new answers, a similar distrust of the old formulas embodied in the old parties. Somewhere, some new party line or some striking variant on the old dogmas, is going to take held and create its own orthodoxy. But whether Mr. Servan-Schreiber and his followers have come up with a policy innovative enough to satisfy the young radicals and demolish the nld, to shake the existing establishment without mobilizing its defenders in overwhelming strength, rests with the future.

the girls' brassleres would be "con-traband" and not "booty"? So, for the two girls, it was "the beginning of a nightmare neither had believed could ever happen to them." Amazing, isn't it? Two girls, intelligent enough to be students in a university, who are unable to envisage the penalty for smuggling drugs!

Then, to point up the great American "suckerhood" (if I may coin a word), the girls were carrying the drugs "for a friend they had met only days before in Tangier."

So they spent 26 days in a Spanish jail, then jumped ball and fied the country. What a perfectly wonderful story they'll have to recount to their relatives and friends back home. "Oh, my dear, the way are and "Home perfect proud". it was awful!" How very proud their parents must be!

The rest of Mr. Jenkins's article, concerning the 214 Americans who were arrested, tried, jailed or deported from Spain in 1969 for drug violations, is almost too sickening to the average American for discussion- particularly when, as it is alleged in Mr. Jenkins's article, the chief offenders are almost all from middle and upper-class American homes. What a dashing touch to add to the image of the American

Mr. Rumor's task is further com plicated by having to juggle and balance the often conflicting policy demands and ministeria posts of eight clearly identifiable factional currents in his own party and those in the two separate Socialist parties. His fourth potential coalition partner, the Republican party, is too small—only nine deputies—to be able to afford the luxury of factions.

Straddle Opposition

The premier - designate must straddle somehow the diametrically opposed positions of the two Socialist parties on attitudes toward Communism. The right-wing Socialists are rigidly opposed to any concessions to the large Italian Communist party, while the ortho-dox Socialists are willing to explore various forms of accommodation in national and local government. Comedy Quartet Makes a Hit

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss LONDON, Peb. 16. — British comedy is steering clear of the aristocratic drawing room these days. Consider the sets for John Mortimer's quartet of playlets, "Come As You Are!", a hit at the New Theatre. The scenes are, in turn, a dentist'e bedroom, a lower middle-class perior on Christmas Eve, 2 Gloucester Road maisonette that houses paying guests, and a kept woman'e boudoir in the Marble Arch district.

Mortimer has a facile and amusing pen and draws his characters and situations skillfully. The opening play is about a fetishist Don Juan who dresses as Sir Walter Raleigh and spreads a clock at the feet of his lady love while conducting seductions it's but an intimate revue skit. The second tale, an account of a bisexual triangle in Bermondsey, is rather cramped in its present form, being sufficiently meaty to be extended into a full-length play. Several movie scouts have come to investigate the picture possibilities. It is likely to emerge in a film version. It has a psychological and dramatic depth that is lacking in its trifling companion pieces. There is a wry humor to the Gloucester Road trio, whose design-for-living scheme is in a shaky state. And there is a juicy slice of robust farce to end the evening-it concerns a passé film queen who fears that her producer-protector has died in her bathroom.

Glynis Johns, a versatile comedienne runs the gamut with brilliant dexterity from Sir Walter Raleigh's girlfriend to the non-U wife trying to hold on to her husband, from impoverished sophisticate to faded movie star. Denholm Elliot displays a like chameleon talent in his transformations from fidgety Lothario to neupous royalist to bulging motion-picture mogul. Joss Ackland is best in the second play as the husband who plans to stray and, in the fourth, as the shuffling janitor. Pauline Collins'e high moment comes as the hippie boarder lodged in a conserva-* * *

There appears to he something awry with the economics of the London theater. All playgoers are anxious to see Ian McKellan's fine performacces in "Edward II" and "Richard II," and it is virtually impossible to obtain tickets for them. Yet his engagement at the Piccadilly—he plays "Ed-ward II" on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays and 'Richard II" on Fridays, Saturday matinees and Saturday evenings-is limited to a few weeks. The plays, the reigning successes of the season, might -if their star could withstand the strain—run indefinitely and certainly they would be a great tourist attraction during the summer months. As it is, only a restricted number of spectators will see them.

Acclaimed at the Edinburgh Festival last September, the McKellan performances were seen for a brief London run at the Mermaid Theatre last autumn, playing to packed houses and turning away thousands of potential customers. As no West End theater was then available and as the Mermaid had booked a new production, "The Band-wagon" (which lasted only a few weeks), the McKellan company went on a Continental tour. Returning to London, the company had an even greater success and is again confronted with the housing problem. With many of the London theaters playing indifferent stuff to little or no profit, it is incredible that no playhouse can be found for these stunning productions, the very best theatrical fare now on the boards.

After Shakespeare, Shaw remains the author most frequently revived in London and a program known as "Three," composed of his short plays,
"How He Lied to Her Husband," "Village Wooing" and "Press Cuttings," is to be found at the Fortune Theatre.
"How He Lied to Her Husband," a control of the Husband," a sort of sequel to "Candida," is a mere trifle. Shaw supervised its being made into an early talkie, but it proved a resounding flop at that time. In its present resurrection, it creaks badly. But the Shavian story-telling skill flashes at the very beginning of "Village Wooing." And "Press Cuttings," written in 1909 and set three years in the future, in 1912, remains bright and witty satire with its picture of London occupied by the suffragettes and its caricatures of Lord Kitchener, Bal-four and Asquith. Good jokes, it seems, have longer life than burning political issues.

PARIS, Feb. 16.—Sunglasses in the rain? Right. French girls are now buying sunglasses at the rate their mothers bought

We're a long way from the days when glasses were con-sidered about as attractive as false teeth. First launched as incognito, decades ago by Greta Garbo, sunglasses have sidetracked even farther. They have nothing to do with the sun or protecting your eyes—they're just the gadget à la

The rich and famous use sunglasses, one might suppose, to set a distance between their important persons and the rest of the world. Tired people resort to glasses to hide a wrinkle or two. But the most interesting development in sunglasses is that they have become fun fashions.

On the Map

In France, Robert Sonthonnax is the man responsible for putting sunglasses on fashion map. He started 20 years ago with a small family business that made plastic belts, hairpins and knitting needles. which he dropped to concentrate on sunglasses with a fashion

Now, Mr. Sonthonnax has three factories at Oyonnax, heart of French rugbyland, near the Swiss border. An exrugby player himself, Mr. Sonthonnax, who travels in his Ferrari and private jet, has pretty much blanketed the world market. With a $2 million production, he makes 25,000 sunglasses a day, exports nearly half of them to the United States, where they're marketed by Riviera. He holds American women responsible for his success, which has neatly boomeranged back home. "American women are most accessories: giant glasses. gadget-conscious," he said.

Going on a Black Truffle Spree

PARIS, Feb. 16.—The black truffle is seasonal, perishable and expensive. Now is the time to squander your money in the big splurge. During Jannary and February, the truffle is at its apogee. Nature's compensation for the dreary months.

By Naomi Barry

To eat it sparingly is less of an ecocomy than a waste of time. Specks of truffle give a visual impression of richness, but it ends there. To get the taste, you need enough for a good crunch to release the somewhat nutty flavor. A whole plateful is just about the right amount.

Roger Lamazère, whose yearly order from the merchants of Cahors is a whopping two tons, presents the black diamond in several ways. You can have it hot and whole, accompanied by a slab of fresh fole gras. This is considered the royal treat-

You can have it chopped and incorporated into an omelet or creamy scrambled eggs. For two days prior to serving, Mr. Lamazère puts whole truffles and whole eggs together in a giant, covered brandy suffer. Egg shells are porous. By the time they are cracked for an omelet, the interiors of the eggs have been impregnated with the aroma of the truffles.

Truffles on Truffles

My favorite is a dish simply called les truttes en salade. This is nothing but truffle slices on truffle slices, moistened with a bit of walnut oil and lemon juice. As an extra nod for more texture, they have been garnished with a toss of toasted pine nuts. (When the pine nut season is over toasted almonds will be substituted.)

The combination is beautiful. and sui generis. The price is hurtful. Fifty francs or just under $10 a portion. But then you are dealing with a commod-ity in the caviar class.

Mr. Lamazère serves truffles that seem peak-fresh throughout the year. His secret is a process that stabilizes the truffle for 18 months, enabling it to retain the appearance, moist plumpness, and the perfume of one of the treasures just dug up in Périgord or the area around Cahors. A Lamasère-treated truffle is the only na-

You can also buy them to take home or even to airfreight across the sea. This year they are selling at 500 france the kilo. Mr. Lamazère's luxury restaurant, which opened in the Champs-Hysées district last Au-

Benny Goodman and the Silent Majority

MUSIC.

By Henry Pleasants

LONDON—Speaking of silent majorities, as almost everyone seems to be doing these days, how about the swing fans of the 1980s, who have seen their music swept away by such assertive fashions as belop, the new jazz and

Well, they may no longer be a majority, but there are plenty of them around; and as many as the Royal Festival Hall could accommodate were on hand Saturday night to welcome Benny Goodman as he held forth with a 16-piece band of admirably qualified British studio jazzmen. The capacity crowd was no surprise to those of us who have seen the same hall packed for a Glann Miller concert by the not especially famous Syd Lawrence band unassisted by any other American big name than Miller. And we will know what to expect when Buddy De Franco arrives in April at the head of a Glenn Miller band representing the Glenn Miller estate. Actually, this music never disappeared. Only the bands disappeared. The music went into the studios, and the musicians with it. You can hear it today behind Frank Sinatra and Tony Bennett and scores of other singers. You can hear it on the Johnny Carson Show and the Engelbert Humperdinck Show and the Tom Jones Show, and so on. Swing became mainstream, and the world of jazz disowned it.

Indeed, what he heard from the musicians on the Tom Jones Show had a lot to do with Benny Goodman's decision to undertake a European tour with a British band. And what he has achieved in a week of rehearsals and ten days of touring proves that he has lost none of his gift for picking fine musicians and getting the best out

He has lost none of his virtuosity as a clarist player, either. It has been 25 years now since Benny was regularly on the scene, and one know to remember him primarily as a band less forgetting what a supreme clarinetist he has a ways been. And so, for me, the most excites episode of this concert was when he gave the band a breather and played "Poor Butter!" with only a rhythm backing.

Here was a superb virtuoso at work. The cond was lovely, the message tender, the ornamess and embellishments imaginative, tasteful and brilliantly executed. Later we had the other Benny Goodman, exultant and exuberent, rides high above the band, the Pied Piper who had in kids swinging in the states at the Parki mount back in 1937. And, of course, the memorable doodling on Sing, Sing, Sing, which set up the historio jam session at its close of the Carnegie Hall concert in 1998.

Whether out of respect for an audieocs d viously out for a nostalgic binge, or out of dismi-tion in dealing with an ad hot band. Bend stuck to the old arrangements from the min 30s, most of them by Fletcher Henristson. his judgment was confirmed. The band place as if it knew them by heart, which many of something probably did. And there were strict soloists to fill the openings left by Bendersoloist much market. for such masters as Harry James, Ziggy Should Vido Musso and Murray McEachern. This London concert was a stopover between Gstaad and Bucharest. Still to come at Copenhagen, Stookhoim, Gotherburg Park, Amsterdam, Hamburg, Frankfurt and Berlin, the latter concluding the tour on March 3.

Foreign exchange nagnama

Let's not kid ourselves

When dealing with so many foreign exchange regulations and problems, no bank can wave a magic wand and make all your headaches vanish

But we believe a bank can-and should—do everything in its power to help.

We do.

We have branches and subsidiaries (47, to be exact) all over the world to keep us abreast of local market information and regulations

And Cenfex—our network of foreign exchange desks in major money capitals allows us to handle transactions efficiently. With instant access to the varying rates, we can produce the most attractive exchange, rates for our clients.

But we do considerably more for you than this.

We'll sit down with you. And listen. And really try to iron out your own particular problems.

If it's a time of monetary unrest, for instance, and you ask us to evaluate your risks, we'll show you all the alternatives open to you. Then let you decide which suits your own business condition best.

We might even suggest you not exchange your funds at current rates. Or give you alternate banking methods which will do the same job as an exchange of funds, at less cost to you.

We might not be able to end all the headaches of foreign exchange.

But we will do all in our power to ease the pain.

Bear Market Took Awesome Toll

Wall Street Sights a Turn Coming Soon

By Vartanig G. Vartan NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (NYT).

-- When this market finally turns," a brokerage-houss partner observed last week, "nobody is going to fire a cannon down

But there are signs nowsomething better than tea leaves and stock-market letters that a turn for the better could appear within the next two months.

Every investor knows how bad the long bear market has been, but few realize the awe-some toll that has been paid for this decline in terms of market

A $133.7 Billion Loss Take the New York Stock Exchange, for example. The Big Board's own index of all listed securities crested at the end of Securities crested at the end of November, 1963. At that time, the total value of common and preferred stocks stood at $716.4

Only 14 months later—at the end of last month—the value of Big Board securities had dwindled to $582.7 billion, despite an increase in the number of listed shares during the in-terim from 13 billion to 15 bil-

This means $133.7 billion was washed down the drain—an amount nearly double the $71.8 billion U.S. military budget for fiscal 1971, or more than a dozen times the federal gov-ernment's projected $10.6 billion for education spending.

The 14-month market decline becomes even bigger when one includes the dollar slide that hit the American Stock Exchange and the over-the-count-

Early this month, more than 2,000 money managers and assorted financial geniuses trooped into the annual Institution al Investor conference here. They came, in wide ties and narrow smiles, to listen and gossip and exchange stories on how tough things were.

Well-Heeled Gloom Their aggregate attitude bespoke well-heeled gloom. Gloom tabulators found that the despondency had not run so deep in money-manager ranks since 1368, shortly before President Johnson made his famous March 31 speech with plans to scale down the war in Vietnam —and the stock market took off in 2 sizzling rally.

Thus, the newest technical indicator in the market: Money-manager gloom. It promises to replace the odd-lot

The second sign of an up-turn has been given by the stock market itself. Although age toppled on Jan. 30 to 744.06, its poorest reading in the Dow Jones industrial averthan six years, far fewer stocks were making new lows than in tate July of 1969. The implica-tion here is that the overall market holds up in better shape than the Dow barometer

Glamours Lose Luster Another indication that better market days probably exist in the not-too-distant future has been flashed by the de-flated action of numerous glamour stocks, including IBM, Control Data, Bell & Howell and sell-off has been triggerad either by the report of disappointing earnings or a decline in profit prospects.

That the glamours have lost some of their luster, in the eyes of some market observers, augurs well for the general

Finally, it appears reasonable to assume that what will make the market finally turn is evidence of an easing of credit. The clearest sign here would be a move by the Federal Re-serve Board to permit the money supply to start growing

Peanut Butter Will Do The prospect is for a modest easing of money. But a etarving man—or a stockholder does not clamor for caviar. A peanut-butter sandwich will do fine for a start.

The Washington watchers have detected what they be-lieve to be a significant enange. The administration has switched to using moral sua-sion in a positive effort to dampen the decline in public sentiment," said one Wall Streeter.

In the last two weeks the money market, which is usually more sensitive to these developments than the stock market, has seen rising prices in an-ticipetion of easing credit.

Some observers believe that President Nixon, while hoping to avoid a recession in 1970, really wants to encourage a rising economy in 1971 and a booming economy in 1972—right on target for the next presi-dential election.

Many players would be likely to overlook the simple safety play required on the diagramed deal, just as the declarer did when it was played in an English tournament recently.

South reached a contract of five clubs after East had opened the bidding with one spade. The take-out double followed by the cue-bid in spades was as good a way as any of showing South's powerful hand. West led a spade and South was happy to find dummy with four trumps and a doubleton heart. He won the spade lead and played the club ace, expecting to lose one trump trick and one spade trick. He had to be down one trick when East proved to have all the missing trumps and declarer no doubt counted him-self unlucky. But he should perhaps have foreseen this possibility and led the club jack from his hand at the second trick.

In fairness to South, it must be admitted that his play could have been right. If the clubs had divided two-one and the hearts five-one, the play of the club ace would have been the right play to make 11 tricks. But this situation is somewhat less likely.

When the hand was replayed,

North-South reached six clubs, an apparently hopeless slam. But as a result of a cue-bid from South, North became the declarer. East was unlinely to hit on the lead of the diamond ace, a suit his partner had bid, and the contract was made. The opening lead was ruffed in the South hand and the safety play was made by lead-ing the club jack. East won and shifted to spades, but too late. The declarer won with spade ace and established hearts by ruffing the third round. The diamond king provided the discard for a spade loser and the marked finesse in trumps permitted the slam

Heavyweight Championship Countdown

By Dave Anderson NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (NYT). After nearly two years of conision with two world heavyeight champions, Joe Franier id Jimmy Ellis will determine le single successor to Casshix lay tonight at Madison Square arden. Frazier, recognized as the nampion hy six states, is a savy favorite over Ellis, World oxing Association champion. he odds vary from 4 to 1 in ew York to 6 to 1 in Las egas, but many boxing obgivers give Ellis a strong Style is the reason. Ellis is a diled boxer-puncher who might twart Frazier's relentless at-

One who thinks Ellis will win ", Clay, also known as Muham-ued Ali, the deposed champion.

"I can see why Cley says that," Frazier said. "He had Ellis as a sparring partner, he worked with him; he knows him. But he never worked with me, he doesn't know what I can do."

Ellis, who once outpointed Clay when they were amateurs in Louisville, Ky., a decade ago, reacted calmly.

"It doesn't surprise me that he picked me," Ellis said. "He knows what I can do, he knows my ability."

Ellis has defied odds before. He was the betting underdog in each of his WBA tournament bouts, but stopped Lectis Martin and outpointed both Oscar Bonavena and Jerry Quarry to win that version of the title on April 27, 1968. He defended tt successfully in a controversial decision over Floyd Patterson in Stockholm, Sweden, five months

But among the factors in Frazier's favor is that Ellis has not fought in 17 months. During that span, the Philadelphia slugger has outpointed Bona-vens and stopped both Dave Zyglewicz of Buffalo, N.Y., in 96 seconds, and Quarry in de-fending his title, which he won by stopping Buster Mathis on March 4, 1968, in the new Gar-den's opening boxing program.

Frazier is undefeated in 34 bouts, with 21 knockouts, Ellis, who spent four years as a middleweight, has a career record of 27 victories and five defeats, with 12 knockouts. But after having grown into a true heavyweight following the removal of infected tonsils early in 1866, he has compiled a 12-0 won-lost record, with six knockouts.

"As a heavyweight," said Ellis's manager, Angelo Dundee, "Jimmy is as undefeated as Prazier is."

Frazier is expected to be a chunky 205 pounds, with Ellis expected at 198. "I'm going to be so close to him," Frazier has said of his battle plan, "that he's going to have to do something. I doubt that he can move away from me as fast as I can move in on Ellis, however, professes no fear of Frazier's swarming, slugging style that has demolished so many foes.

Not a Powderpuff "He'll be right there where I can hit him," Ellis said. "I'm not a powderpuff, I can punch hard, too." Elis's chin might be stronger.

That's because when I fell.

too. He has been floored only once, when Rubin (Hurricane) Carter registered a momentary knockdown in 1964 at the old Garden in a middleweight match. Frazier has been on the canvas three times—twice in a 1966 bout with Bonavena at the Garden, and once in his second professional bout with Mike

But no matter which gladiator emerges as the single champion, each will collect an equal share of the gate and ancillary income. Each has been guaranteed $150,000, although each's 30 percent of the total income is virtually certain to double, if not triple, that amount

'One-Handed' Joe

the heavyweight title showdown will match the warming fury of Joe Frazier's two-fisted belliggrence against the disciplined skills of Jimmy Ellis's thwarting left jab and coiled right hand. If Clay ever had opposed Frazier, the left jab would have been his most important punch.

The success of Clay's former sparring partner, Ellis, also is expected to depend on the jab because each has been influenced by the same strategist, Angelo Dundee. "To me." Dundee was saying yesterday as Ellis relaxed by playing checkers in his midtown hotel, "the jab is the most important punch in boxing. The guy without a jah isn't a good fighter; he's a one-handed fighter. The jah is a setter-upper, it's your ruler, your meas-uring stick. It makes the guy you're fighting do what you want him to do. If an upset is to occur, Ellis must control the tempo, just as Frazier must dominate Ellis if he is to win.

Upstairs and Down "Frazier doesn't have much of a jah," Dundee continued. "When he's looking to hook you, he'll jab. hut that's about the only time ... Jimmy Eliis has a variety jab upstairs and downstairs. Sugar Ray's jah was like Jimmy's.

Ellis will need an effective jab to interrupt Frazier's attack and to create an ambush for his right hand. "He showed that he will keep coming." Ellis

: ¿ Ellis's craftsmanship. "I'm going to put a whole lot of pressure on him." Frazier has said. "I don't think he's used to that pressure." "We're going out there and do our thing and prove who's the best," Prazier said. "All the ip-lip and the yap-yap is over."

Will Ellis Lose by a Nose?

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (NYT).—Among the unknown factors in Seventeen months ago, the World Boxing Association champion incurred a severe fracture of the upper nose in his controversial decision over Floyd Patterson in Stockholm. Three days later, he underwent remedial surgery. The recuperative period kept Ellis out of the gym for four months. The tenderness, he acknowledges now, prompted him to avoid a bout last April at Madison Square Garden with Joe Frazier, the six-state champion. But according to Ellis's surgeon, Dr. Julian Groff of North Miami Beach, Fla., his nose is "stronger" than it ever was.

"Jimmy has more breathing space in his nose than he did before," Dr. Groff said by telephone from Florida, "because during the operation, I corrected his septum and also removed a piece

"There's not as much mucous membrane in there anymore," he said. "Instead, there's a lot of scar tissue with less vascular Another thing, his nose is probably more resilient to a

In summation, Dr. Groff proclaimed that there was "no weakness" in Ellis's nose.

"Jimmy," Frazier said, "at 201 pounds, you are going to be too heavy to move." "All right, baby, we'll see how you move

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (NYT).—Some "off-field activities" in 1967 of Denny McLain, the American League's outstanding pitcher ons, are under investigation by the office of the commissioner of baseball; Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Friday.

Of McLain's 'Off-Field Activities'

Kuhn met Friday with the 25-year-old Detroit pitcher, who won 31 games in 1968 and 24 last year, and McLain's lawyer. After the meeting McLain left for Lakeland, Fla., where he has a home, and was unavailable for comment. But the commissioner issued the following statement:

"This office has been reviewing certain off-field activities of Denny McLain which occurred in 1967.
"I had a conference today with Mr. McLain and his attorney and we discussed the matter fully. They are giving this office their cooperation and have assured me of their continuing willingness to do so,
